ABOUT THE STATE

An adjourned session of the February term of United States courts will be held at Bratileboro beginning Monday after-noon for the convention of litigants having cases in that vicinity. The court will sit in Grange hall.

Lake Champlain remains solidly froz-en and the ice inside the breakwater is thicker now than it has been at any revious time this winter, being from 14 to 20 inches in thickness. Last year at this time the ice was well honeycombed. There are a few open places near the New York shore but they are not large enough to give the wind an epportunity to break the ice. It is now expected to start the Tinconderoga up-on her trips the 20th of April but if the present weather continues it will be later than that. The Vermont will not be gin running until the 28th of May. The coats will be officered as last year.

That this nature story is no fake is vouched for by a resident of Stowe, the owner of a rooster and gobbler that frequently fought with neither able to gain a decided victory. After passing one whole forenoon in a desultory struggle, the gobbler apparently gave it up and retired from the field, walking in a casual way along the road toward a neighbor's house. Presently he came back accompanied by a gobler from the neighbor's flock, and thus reinforced, again opened hostilities. The rooster proved game and with a little help from the men folks, who thought his pluck deserved to win, vanquished the gobblers.
